DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 14-15 and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takatori et al. (Pub. No.: US 2003/0078844 A1) in view of Rowe (Pub. No.: US 2005/0021458 A1).

Regarding claims 14 and 26, Takatori et al. ("Takatori") teaches a service accounting system and a method for use in said service accounting system. Takatori teaches that a user can open and owned a plurality of billing accounts with a main account designated to be charged (see paragraphs [0056] and [0065]). Takatori further teaches that the user can charge directly to the main account (see paragraph [0084]). Takatori further teaches that each of the service accounts can has a classification and be charged in accordance with a call destination assigned thereto (see paragraphs [0111] through [0134]).

It should be noticed that Takatori fails to clearly teach the feature of transferring funds from the main account to the plurality of accounts. However, Rowe teaches such feature in paragraph [0128] for a purpose of making payments to each particular supplier for their bills.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art the time the invention was made to incorporate the use of the feature of transferring funds from the main account to the plurality of accounts, as taught by Rowe, into view of Takatori in order to pay for services.

Regarding claim 15, Rowe further teaches limitations of the claim in paragraphs [0120]-[0122].

4. Claims 16-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takatori et al. (Pub. No.: US 2003/0078844 A1) in view of Rowe (Pub. No.: US 2005/0021458 A1), as applied to claim 14 above, and further in view of Wallenius (US Pat. #: 6,70,417 as cited in the previous Office Action).

Regarding claim 16, Takatori and Rowe, in combination, teaches all subject matters as claimed above. It is noticed that Rowe further that “allowance” accounts are automatically obtained funds transferred from the main account at predetermined intervals. Rowe fails to clearly teach the feature of transmitting a recharging request to the main accounting system as needed. However, Wallenius teaches such features in col.6, lines 10-25 for a purpose of preventing the account of billing unit from exhausted.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to of ordinary skill in the art the time the invention was made to incorporate the use of the feature of transmitting a recharging request to the main accounting system as needed, as taught by Wallenius, into view of Takatori and Rowe in order to prevent the accounts from exhausted for the services.

Regarding claim 17, Wallenius further teaches limitations of the claim in col.6, lines 20-22.

5. Claim 18 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takatori et al. (Pub. No.: US 2003/0078844 A1) in view of Rowe (Pub. No.: US 2005/0021458 A1), as applied to claim 14 above, and further in view of Hidem et al. (US Pat. #: 5,749,052 also cited in the previous Office Action).

Regarding claim 18, Takatori and Rowe, in combination, teaches all subject matters as claimed above, except that said recharging request is transmitted at a predefined point of time. However, Hidem et al. ("Hidem") teaches such feature in col.13, line 46 through col.14, line 14, line 67 for a purpose of providing the maximum balance the prepaid account.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art the time the invention was made to incorporate the use of said recharging request is transmitted via an end user request, as taught by Masuda, into view of Takatori and Rowe in order to improve the prepaid telecommunications services with convenience of update account for the maximum, to be provided to prepaid subscriber.

Art Unit: 2614

6. Claims 19-25 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takatori et al. (Pub. No.: US 2003/0078844 A1) in view of Rowe (Pub. No.: US 2005/0021458 A1), as applied to claim 14 above, and further in view of Masuda (Pub. No.: US 20030078031 also cited in the previous Office Action).

Regarding claim 19, Takatori and Rowe, in combination, teaches all subject matters as claimed above, except that said recharging request is transmitted via an end user request. However, Masuda teaches such feature in paragraphs [0066] and [0081] for a purpose of balancing the prepaid account.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art the time the invention was made to incorporate the use of said recharging request is transmitted via an end user request, as taught by Masuda, into view of Takatori and Rowe in order to improve the prepaid telecommunications services with convenience of update account as required, to be provided to prepaid subscriber.

Regarding claim 20, Masuda further teaches the limitations of the claim in paragraph [0062]

Regarding claims 21-25, Masuda further teaches the limitations of the claims in paragraphs [0059], [0065]-[0066] and [0076]-[0077].
